SUFFERED INSTANT DEATH

With His Parent the Lad Had Been Milking Cows When Bolt Fell, Snuffing Life Out.

In the electrical storm of yesterday ening Alois Mueller, Jr., 13 years of age, was struck by a lightning bolt and stantly killed on his father's dairy arm, near the Telluride Power comany's plant west of the Jordan river. The father and son had been milking vs, and the father was but a few eds away from the boy when the oit fell, killing the boy and stunning the father. The boy's clothing was burned, his hair singed and the body and limbs burned. As quickly as the father could reach the boy's side he picked him up and running to the house with the inert form in his arms, tried to resucitate him by dashing water in his face. Dr. C. F. Wilcox was called, but the boy was found to have suffered instant death.

The body was removed to the mortusty of S. M. Taylor, from where the funral will be held Wednesday after-

AMUSEMENTS

Shubert—Rollicking musical comedy, attractively set, is again offered at the Shubert by the Allen-Curtis, company and in spite of the torried temperatures it serves to drive dull care away with its tuneful ditties and nonsensical dialogue. "The Promoters' is the title of this week's offering. An effective stage setting shows a pretty picture and owing to the intricate properties involved, this scene is retained throughout the evening, not to a disadvantage. It shows a Parisian effect. A new comedian, Jack Collins, appears in this week's bill for the first time, and he made good as a German character man, the other familiars adding to the fun. A number of the season's newest songs are interpolated by the favorites of the company, and throughout the efforts are filled with fun and tunefulness. "The Promoters" runs for the week with matinees Wednesday and Saturday, with two nightly performances.

Moving Pictures—At Manager Flor-ences other houses, the usual favor is bestowed on the bills nightly offered.

ECCLESIASTICAL COURT IN SESSION

Elders Heber J. Grant, Anthony W. Ivins and Joseph W. McMurrin Taking Testimony.

(Special to The News.) Preston, Ida., July 19 .- An eccelsiastical court is holding sessions in this city, the first having been held yes terday in the assembly hall of the Onelda stake academy. Upon appointment by the First presidency, upon application of George D. Casto, Elders Heber J. Grant and Anthony W. Ivins and President Joseph W. McMurcia compose the court. The sessions are being held behind closed doors and its determination will not be known until its final report is filed, which may immediately follow the closing of its sessions, or not until after the return of the members to Salt Lake. It is generally believed here that today's ression will conclude the business of the bearing.

Upon calling the court, an invitation was extended to any and all persons in Oneida stake to be present to state any grievances which they might have as respecting the interests of either party to the charges filed before the court.

party to the charges filed before the court.

Appearing before the court yesterday were George D. Casto and F. J. Callan. These men appear as representatives of landowners in the Oneida district and are said to represent 150 others. Mr. Casto is the man who appeared on the floor of a recent conference of Oneida stake and confessed to having written stories relating to President George D. Parkinson and apologized publicly, stating that he had been misguided by others and that the stories were untrue. He now appears pressing charges of assault and dures, as stated in his formal charge laid before the court.

An affidavit was presented yesterday by P. J. Moore in relation to the funds of the Oneida district in which the affiant declared that at a conference between himself and President Parkinson the latter had stated that complete payment had been made into the treasury of the district of all funds for which he was accountable.

The perber on every program thus far has been enthusiastically applauded. The personality of the conductor, Don Philippini, is most interesting. With long, wavy black locks he shakes his head vehemently during the forte passages, his mass of hair flying violently in the breeze. When the andante passages were encountered his expressive countenance mellowed into a smile, and he bowed gracefully forward as if to reach down for the sweet, low tones. The development of volume in some of the selections of last evening came as a revelation to music lovers in the a revelation to music lovers in the audience, and the loudest crashes of horn and drum were so harmonious that it could not but be enjoyable. Sometimes Den Philippini becomes so enwrapt with the selections his band produces that he bursts spontaneously into song, and for a few measures mingles his voice in unison with the tones of the band.
